HELP BUILD A STRONG FOUNDATION FOR LOYOLA’S FUTURE

Loyola University New Orleans seeks $7 million in philanthropic investments to the Loyola Fund that will strengthen the university’s financial foundation and ensure its reliable day-to-day operation. In seeking this support, we hope to bolster the participation of alumni, parents, and friends of Loyola and create a more active and robust university community.

The Loyola Fund offers everyone the opportunity to give back. Each gift of any size provides vital support and is an investment in the people and future of Loyola. Each donor joins the professors who teach, the Jesuits who help guide our mission, and the eager students who work hard to follow proudly in alumni footsteps.

Many factors will determine Loyola’s success in its second century. Among the most important are the spirit and solidarity of the broader Loyola community in demonstrating faith in Loyola’s future by supporting the Loyola Fund.

“For Leadership

Today, our university is thriving with students fully committed to the ongoing resurrection of New Orleans and the Gulf Coast, outstanding new faculty members, improvements to our physical campus, and a disciplined financial footing. There is faith in our future.

We cannot always predict what will happen in any given year, and that is why the flexible funding the Loyola Fund provides is so important. In times of need, the Loyola Fund makes it possible for university leaders to respond strategically, decisively, and quickly.

“I would not be where I am today without the knowledge and guidance I received from Loyola. My time at Loyola ingrained that critical thinking, ethical awareness, and acting justly should be incorporated in all aspects of life. Loyola challenges us to ‘lead meaningful lives with and for others.’ I live this out by staying involved with Loyola. By joining me in embracing this call, you will help current and future students as they embark on their Loyola journeys.”

— Huy Vu ’98, Managing Director, Wells Fargo Securities

LOYOLA UNIVERSITY NEW ORLEANS

campaign@loyno.edu
www.loyno.edu

FAITH IN THE FUTURE

THE CAMPAIGN FOR LOYOLA UNIVERSITY NEW ORLEANS

THE LOYOLA FUND: FUNDING THE UNIVERSITY’S MISSION
SUPPORT FOR PEOPLE

Loyola University New Orleans is only as great as the individuals who bring it to life each day. They show up and go to work—whether as students, faculty, staff, or administrators—and their individual efforts, conducted in every corner of campus, collectively drive the university on its Jesuit mission.

The Loyola Fund is on campus every day, too. But it takes an acute eye to see it at work. It is here in the library and classrooms, purchasing books and technology. It is all among our students and faculty, whose scholarships and salaries depend on it. It is in campus maintenance and the finance office that make sure the university’s programs progress unimpeded.

The Loyola Fund is in our classrooms, laboratories, performance halls, and athletics courts. It is not the fund that constructed them, but it is the fund that keeps them full of life.

Utilities, insurance, employee salaries and benefits, student scholarships—all of these and more come from the university’s general operating budget, of which the Loyola Fund is a small but crucial part. The Loyola Fund provides university leadership with the ability to address important needs as soon as they arise, and it is entirely supported by gifts from members of the Loyola community.

“Loyola University is a community of educators committed to academic excellence and service to others. Whitney Bank has proudly supported the Greater New Orleans area for over 170 years, creating financial opportunities for generations. I encourage the business and community leaders of our region to join me in support of the Loyola Fund so the university has the required discretionary funds necessary to continue providing educational opportunities to future generations.”

—Joe Exnicios, J.D. ’90, President of Whitney Bank

THE LOYOLA FUND: AT WORK EVERY DAY

At Loyola, student tuition and fees fund 85 percent of the university’s operating budget, with endowment and other revenue covering almost all the rest.

Yet a small gap—about one percent annually—remains. The Loyola Fund closes that gap.

In the coming years, the students, faculty and university leaders of Loyola will face unanticipated challenges and unprecedented opportunities. How the university responds will speak volumes about our values, our tradition, and our faith in the future.

The Loyola Fund makes it possible for university leaders to exercise judgment and direct resources where they can best address challenges and convert needs to opportunities—whether to help students with financial need, to support ambitious faculty, or to respond effectively when urgent needs arise.

FOR STUDENTS

Living up to our Jesuit educational tradition means enhancing our intellectual environment by enrolling students from a wide variety of socio-economic backgrounds who share a common commitment to academic achievement and personal success. Each student of exceptional promise renews the life of the university, extends a century’s tradition of excellence, and adds to the generations of our alumni across the world.

Flexible scholarship support from the Loyola Fund is essential to helping the university attract highly qualified and determined students, including many who are first in their families to attend college.

FOR FACULTY

Animating the intellectual life of our community is central to Loyola’s tradition and vital to our future. We are known for, and proud of, our notable faculty-student ratio of 10:1 that ensures personal attention to student learning.

In the past eight years, we have redoubled our commitment to academic excellence, hiring more than half of our current faculty since 2006. This represents a forward-looking investment in bringing to life Loyola’s curriculum, intellectual engagement, teaching, and research.

Flexible support from the Loyola Fund helps make it possible for our dedicated professors to excel in their disciplines and to foster dynamic learning among their students and the university community.

“I feel extremely fortunate to have attended Loyola University New Orleans. The education I received, the leadership skills I developed, and the relationships I formed are invaluable to me in my professional and personal life. If I am able to use my talents to give back to an institution that has done so much for me, I’m happy to do so. My hope is that the current students of Loyola have the same great experience, and after graduation, they too find a way to give back to the university as well, sustaining a model of Jesuit values that has been so successful for over 100 years.”

—Leigh Thorpe ’03, Managing Director, Projects With Purpose
SUPPORT FOR PEOPLE

Loyola University New Orleans is only as great as the individuals who bring it to life each day. They show up and go to work—whether as students, faculty, staff, or administrators—and their individual efforts, conducted in every corner of campus, collectively drive the university on its Jesuit mission.

The Loyola Fund is on campus every day, too. But it takes an acute eye to see it at work. It is in campus maintenance and the finance office that make sure the university’s programs progress unimpeded.

The Loyola Fund is in our classrooms, laboratories, performance halls, and athletics courts. It is not the fund that constructed them, but it is the fund that keeps them full of life.

Utilities, insurance, employee salaries and benefits, student scholarships—all of these and more come from the university’s general operating budget, of which the Loyola Fund is a small but crucial part. The Loyola Fund provides university leadership with the ability to address important needs as soon as they arise, and it is entirely supported by gifts from members of the Loyola community.

“Loyola University is a community of educators committed to academic excellence and service to others. Whitney Bank has proudly supported the Greater New Orleans area for over 130 years, creating financial opportunities for generations. I encourage the business and community leaders of our region to join me in support of the Loyola Fund so the university has the required discretionary funds necessary to continue providing educational opportunities to future generations.”

—Joe Exnicios, J.D. ’90,
President of Whitney Bank

THE LOYOLA FUND: AT WORK EVERY DAY

At Loyola, student tuition and fees fund 85 percent of the university’s operating budget, with endowment and other revenue covering almost all the rest.

Yet a small gap—about one percent annually—remains. The Loyola Fund closes that gap.

In the coming years, the students, faculty and university leaders of Loyola will face unanticipated challenges and unprecedented opportunities. How the university responds will speak volumes about our values, our tradition, and our faith in the future.

The Loyola Fund makes it possible for university leaders to exercise judgment and direct resources where they can best address challenges and convert needs to opportunities—whether to help students with financial need, to support ambitious faculty, or to respond effectively when urgent needs arise.

FOR STUDENTS

Living up to our Jesuit educational tradition means enhancing our intellectual environment by enrolling students from a wide variety of socio-economic backgrounds who share a common commitment to academic achievement and personal success.

Each student of exceptional promise renews the life of the university, extends a century’s tradition of excellence, and adds to the generations of our alumni across the world.

Flexible scholarship support from the Loyola Fund is essential to helping the university attract highly qualified and determined students, including many who are first in their families to attend college.

FOR FACULTY

Animating the intellectual life of our community is central to Loyola’s tradition and vital to our future. We are known for, and proud of, our notable faculty-student ratio of 10:1 that ensures personal attention to student learning.

In the past eight years, we have redoubled our commitment to academic excellence, hiring more than half of our current faculty since 2006. This represents a forward-looking investment in bringing to life Loyola’s curriculum, intellectual engagement, teaching, and research.

Flexible support from the Loyola Fund helps make it possible for our dedicated professors to excel in their disciplines and to foster dynamic learning among their students and the university community.

“I feel extremely fortunate to have attended Loyola University New Orleans. The education I received, the leadership skills I developed, and the relationships I formed are invaluable to me in my professional and personal life. If I am able to use my talents to give back to an institution that has done so much for me, I’m happy to do so. My hope is that the current students of Loyola have the same great experience, and after graduation, they too find a way to give back to the university as well, sustaining a model of Jesuit values that has been so successful for over 100 years.”

—Leigh Thorpe ’03,
Managing Director,
Projects With Purpose

“I have been a part of the Loyola community for over 130 years, creating financial opportunities for generations. I encourage the business and community leaders of our region to join me in support of the Loyola Fund so the university has the required discretionary funds necessary to continue providing educational opportunities to future generations.”

—Joe Exnicios, J.D. ’90,
President of Whitney Bank

FOR FACULTY

Animating the intellectual life of our community is central to Loyola’s tradition and vital to our future. We are known for, and proud of, our notable faculty-student ratio of 10:1 that ensures personal attention to student learning.

In the past eight years, we have redoubled our commitment to academic excellence, hiring more than half of our current faculty since 2006. This represents a forward-looking investment in bringing to life Loyola’s curriculum, intellectual engagement, teaching, and research.

Flexible support from the Loyola Fund helps make it possible for our dedicated professors to excel in their disciplines and to foster dynamic learning among their students and the university community.

“I feel extremely fortunate to have attended Loyola University New Orleans. The education I received, the leadership skills I developed, and the relationships I formed are invaluable to me in my professional and personal life. If I am able to use my talents to give back to an institution that has done so much for me, I’m happy to do so. My hope is that the current students of Loyola have the same great experience, and after graduation, they too find a way to give back to the university as well, sustaining a model of Jesuit values that has been so successful for over 100 years.”

—Leigh Thorpe ’03,
Managing Director,
Projects With Purpose

“I have been a part of the Loyola community for over 130 years, creating financial opportunities for generations. I encourage the business and community leaders of our region to join me in support of the Loyola Fund so the university has the required discretionary funds necessary to continue providing educational opportunities to future generations.”

—Joe Exnicios, J.D. ’90,
President of Whitney Bank
HELP BUILD A STRONG FOUNDATION FOR LOYOLA’S FUTURE

Loyola University New Orleans seeks $7 million in philanthropic investments to the Loyola Fund that will strengthen the university’s financial foundation and ensure its reliable day-to-day operation. In seeking this support, we hope to bolster the participation of alumni, parents, and friends of Loyola and create a more active and robust university community.

The Loyola Fund offers everyone the opportunity to give back. Each gift of any size provides vital support and is an investment in the people and future of Loyola. Each donor joins the professors who teach, the Jesuits who help guide our mission, and the eager students who work hard to follow proudly in alumni footsteps.

Many factors will determine Loyola’s success in its second century. Among the most important are the spirit and solidarity of the broader Loyola community in demonstrating faith in Loyola’s future by supporting the Loyola Fund.

“For Leadership

Today, our university is thriving with students fully committed to the ongoing resurrection of New Orleans and the Gulf Coast, outstanding new faculty members, improvements to our physical campus, and a disciplined financial footing. There is faith in our future.

We cannot always predict what will happen in any given year, and that is why the flexible funding the Loyola Fund provides is so important. In times of need, the Loyola Fund makes it possible for university leaders to respond strategically, decisively, and quickly.

“I would not be where I am today without the knowledge and guidance I received from Loyola. My time at Loyola ingrained that critical thinking, ethical awareness, and acting justly should be incorporated in all aspects of life. Loyola challenges us to ‘lead meaningful lives with and for others.’ I live this out by staying involved with Loyola. By joining me in embracing this call, you will help current and future students as they embark on their Loyola journeys.”

— Huy Vu ’98, Managing Director, Wells Fargo Securities.

THE LOYOLA FUND: FUNDING THE UNIVERSITY’S MISSION

campaign@loyno.edu
www.loyno.edu

THE CAMPAIGN FOR LOYOLA UNIVERSITY NEW ORLEANS